

Dear FCC,

I was just made aware that the radio station most listened to by our family, K-LOVE, a national radio station using FM translators, may be adversely impacted by a FCC proposal to expand LPFM stations. This is extremely disappointing to me and my family of four.

K-LOVE provides a great service to my family and our local community. It provides music and news that is family friendly. This is so very important in today's world, where it is difficult to find both radio and television that is suitable for small children.

If K-LOVE were to be forced off the air in communities where the proposed changes in LPFM stations were to be implemented, I personally believe many families in my community would be negatively impacted. I only listen to three stations; K-LOVE, NPR and a local AM news station.

I would ask that docket number 04-233 would not change the way thousands of families listen to music and news. That parents and children could continue listen to radio stations like K-LOVE without fear of offensive language or themes that are not suitable for younger children.

Thank you very much for allowing me and my family to voice their concerns.
